

Kids have lots of great ideas.
And we love ideas.

That's why we have created this two-day day camp experience where students will solve real-world problems by developing empathy, working in teams, building solutions, and reflecting. They will learn how to give their ideas shape, voice and wings.

Problem Solving by Design

Led by at team of local K -12 educators, students will work in small groups to collaboratively tackle problems that connect to both their lives and the world around them, answering questions like:

How might we redesign our recess experience?

How might we repurpose scrap material from a local manufacturer?

How might we re-engineer a classroom to better meet our needs as students?

Discover.

Design.

Collaborate.

Create.
